Professional Summary

Archie Raphulu, born 1996 in Johannesburg, South Africa is an art dealer and independent curator based in New York with a focus in contemporary diasporic art. Raphulu is a recent graduate from the University of South Carolina and earning his Bachelors in Communications. Having moved to the city mid-pandemic, Raphulu began his career in the art world with much ambition and a pursuit for knowledge which informs much of his curatorial process. With beginnings as an intern for Ross + Kramer Gallery in Chelsea, New York, Raphulu began at Ross + Kramer Gallery in Chelsea, New York, then worked closely with Danny Baez at REGULARNORMAL and is now currently a gallery associate at Francois Ghebaly, New York. Raphulu has organized multiple exhibitions in New York City and advised for a wide variety of private collections and acquisitions.
